

Attached to that is a notice - what we term as a 30-day notice, signed by Mr. Moxley, dated October 1, 1932 and due October 31, and the notice was given for $1700 for the withdrawal of that amount from Book 5124D. The first check (Comp. Ex. 7) is marked "Notice," which indicates it is a part of this $1700. Those notices are attached to the check which makes the withdrawal, and they are both charged on the ledger against Mr. Moxley's account on the same day, November 2.

Q Is that ledger one of the records ordinarily kept in the conduct of your business?

A Yes.

Q Have you examined that ledger sheet?

A Yes.

Q Are there any other withdrawals in that period of time, say one year or six months before and after this particular withdrawal? (Objection)

A My recollection would be that there was nothing anywhere near that - no substantial amounts - although at the time yesterday evening when we were looking for it we didn't have that particularly in mind. But that was definitely outstanding.

TO THE GEN. INT. By Examiner Motter:

A Nothing more.
